hi All

I've forwarded this to you so you know the Asheville Citizen Times is now looking at the story.

As Sarah mentioned in her email, CAPE has some information from when we addressed this with Asheville Free Press. I'll get at least informational bullet points in a shared document so we can review for any updates etc before I send an official response
I can expand that document out to whomever you wish

Hey Kim,

Thank you so much for setting up my conversation with Jade, it was great to catch up with him on all the city's sidewalk projects.

Bit of a different topic: I'm working on a story about the people charged with felony littering in connection with the Aston Park protests. I understand they went through an appeals process, and saw some info attributed to you in an Asheville Free Press story.

I wanted to follow up on this as well. Who led this process? Who issued the letters to the defendants and how many received them? How many appeal hearings were there, for how many people? Is this a common practice in the city?

Could I also get a copy of the Administrative Policy on Restricted Access to City Parks?
