Having lived and worked in Asheville since 2004, I've seen the city's growth and been impacted in both my work and personal life by the growing population and the impact of tourism on the quality of life for residents. Transportation is the key to providing those who live in Asheville with housing options and will help us to offset the impact of an ever increasing stream of new residents and visitors to our area. Having lived in major metropolitan cities with robust multimodal transportation, I see the value in taking the long view of how we can improve and grow in this area. Having worked in residential and commercial real estate since 2018, I can bring meaningful insight into how people moving to Asheville make decisions about where they live and how greenways, roadways, and multimodal transportation comes into play in their choices, in how business owners evaluate their decision to buy, lease or develop properties based upon available transportation. Prior to real estate, I was a partner in an advertising and marketing firm helping large firms develop marketing campaigns that help inform and inspire so I can provide expertise in this area, as well. I would love the opportunity to serve on the multimodal transportation commission and to help the Asheville community grow and thrive in ways that support the health and well being of both its residents and its economy. Please feel free to contact me with any questions.
