The presentation specifically highlighted onsite wastewater permitting and repair applications, which protect ground and surface water contamination. Silver provided examples including septic repairs and improper septic system complaints that have been submitted and addressed by BC HHS Environmental Health Specialists. Silver emphasized that septic issues are priority events for response in order to protect the residents, neighbors and others against raw sewage and also to protect potential impact to ground water. Silver shared that turnaround times in Onsite Wastewater program has reduced to 6 weeks due to workflow improvements and additional staffing. Silver also discussed the Food & Lodging Inspection program and provided information on the large number of high complexity restaurants in Buncombe County. This level of complexity requires additional time and staffing to best meet the growing food industry locally. Additionally, Silver provided information on public swimming pool inspection data. In particular, Silver reviewed a recent pool incident in which improper chemical storage and usage required immediate pool permit suspension. Silver emphasized the role of Environmental Health is protecting public against pool injury and incident. Board members inquired about specific examples of public swimming pools, if funds are available to assist with septic repairs, and discussed septic program priorities with regards to addressing complaints and repairs.
